A better way of helping people with a disability

The Australian Government wants to help people who are living with a disability.

To do this, we need your ideas on how we can make things better.

Please answer the questions on the following pages.

If you don't have enough room on these pages, you can write your answers on the back of the page or on another piece of paper.

We have written the questions in a way that is easy to read.

Some of the words are written in blue. We tell you what these words mean.

Are you using any services to help with your disability? There are a lot of different services available to help people with housing, activities, transport, work or doing things at home.

Would you like more help to find a job? Or do you already have a job?

Would you like more help to take part in activities, such as sports, being with other people or doing new things?

Are there other kinds of help that you need?

If you could change any service right now, what would you do?

Do you have some ideas about what your life will be like when you get older? What sort of services do you think you will need then?

Do you think that things could be fairer? If so, what would you change?

Would you like more choices about the services you use? Having choices means that you can pick what you want.

If so, what other choices do you want?
